FOREWORD

THIS interesting collection of Early American Furniture, Hooked Rugs and Pewter, though limited in quantity is rich in quality. The Hooked Rugs are of New England origin, including many splendid examples from the State of Maine, which has always led its sister states for the fine quality, close compact hooking and originality in design of its rugs.

The Pewter is all of Dutch origin, from the latter part of the 18th century to the middle part of the 19th century. Most of the pieces are hallmarked and some are inscribed with date.

The furniture is a charming, useful and authentic collection, each piece displaying not only a high decorative value, but forming a choice example of the period to which it is attributed.

The maple highboy, No. 281, is a splendid example of its period and finely constructed of the choicest curly maple, ranking in the class of the finest satinwood. It is fitted with a secret drawer in the crown moulding, which is very unusual.

The little butterfly table, No. 283, found near Newburyport, Mass., is not only a rare piece of the early 18th century, but very unusual owing to its being oblong instead of the more often seen oval ones. Few of this type have been found in recent years.

A splendid pine cupboard with shelves, No. 278, chests of drawers Nos. 277 and 270, Windsor chairs and porringer table, are notable pieces in a remarkable state of preservation.

In mahogany the collector will also find two fine old bookcase secretaries, No. 280 and 279, and a very fine example of a block front desk, No. 282, in a rare state of preservation, and unquestionably made by a master cabinet maker of the period.

A rare cherry dish top table and a mahogany piecrust table, both of the period, are also included in the interesting and distinctive collection.
